

Amy MCWhirter

EMCEE & Event Host

Biography:

International emcee, event host and moderator Amy McWhirter energetically inspires audiences to connect to the heart of messaging at conferences, galas, and meetings. She's the soulful communicator who catalyzes and crafts content, instigates engagement and ties everything together, driving focus, takeaways and business outcomes.

Her warm authenticity shines through to live and virtual audiences, holistically integrating messaging, focusing on key takeaways and elevating the audience's experience. Amy's background in communications as moderator, in-person, virtual and hybrid event MC, corporate presenter, broadcast & TV host, video producer and scriptwriter creates the perfect blend of skills for connecting with remote and in-person attendees.

Facilitating with passion and compassion, she moderates panels and sessions with warmth and depth, creates excitement, improvises with humor, personalizes content, and weaves in themes and key messaging for each session, speaker, award and event.

Amy's sharp and a super quick study with a Bachelor of Science in Biopsychology with Honors pre-med from University of Michigan. She hosted "Built to Last: The Green Home" television docuseries on PBS.

Industry specialties include technology, healthcare, manufacturing, finance and defense, and her clientele spans large corporations like Honeywell, Salesforce, BMC, Leidos, Infosys, Veeam, Milestone Systems, award galas by Fierce Marketing and Executive Platforms, associations such as Credit Union Executives Society and ICAA, and household names including Maytag, Cadillac, Samsung, Cardinal Health.