About Michelle LaBarre

www.labarredressage.com

FEI coach and trainer, Michelle LaBarre, has owned and operated LaBarre Dressage, Inc since 2006. In 2016 she relocated her business to Voltra Farm, a Dressage Academy owned by Carin Mei and located in Verona, NY.

Michelle's dressage education was heavily influenced by her time as a working student in Karlsruhe, Germany where she studied under the famous Herr Egon Von Neindorff. Taking what she learned about rider biomechanics and classical riding, she then studied with Carel Eijkenaar, who was a disciple of Georg Theodorescu, for 15 years. With Mr. Eijkenaar, Michelle developed her deep understanding of the training scale and how it applies to all manner of horses. Other influential trainers along Michelle's path have been Walter Zettl, Arthur Kottas, Beth Baumert and most regularly, 4* dressage judge Agnes Majewska.

As a trainer, Michelle has brought many horses up the levels and is currently planning her Grand Prix debut with her horse FiveStar for this summer.

Michelle is happy to work with riders of all levels and with horses of all breeds. Whether your goals are improving your test scores, developing a pirouette, dealing with a crooked horse or transitioning to dressage from another discipline, Michelle will bring her energy and insights to every ride, every time. And in all cases, she will ensure that the horse's mental and physical well-being remain the top priority. Photo by Terri Miller
