

Team signed 1992 IHL All Star Game Western Conference game issued jersey, size XXL.

The 1992 IHL All Star Game was held in Atlanta and was hosted by the Atlanta Knights, who were scheduled to begin play in 1992-93 as the top affiliate of the Tampa Bay Lightning. Team President Richard Adler had hosted several pre-season NHL games at The Omni and the IHL All Star Game served as a tune up for the upcoming season. Ray Whitney was named the game's most valuable player as the West edged the East by the score of 7-6 in front of 8,029 fans at the Omni. Confirmed signatures on the front of this jersey include Arturs Irbe, Kevin Wortman, Rene Chapdelaine, Pat MacLeod, Brian McKee, Ray Whitney, Shawn Heaphy, Sean Whyte, Len Hachborn, Robbie Nichols, Gary Emmons, Dave Mackey, Jeff Madill, Dominic Lavoie, Alan Hepple, Steve Tuttle, Todd Harkins and Wade Flaherty. This white CCM jersey has everything screened on a lightweight replica Washington Capitals jersey with double shoulders but no reinforced elbows or fight strap. It is very cheaply made but only had to last for one game. I received this jersey directly from Richard Adler.
