

Atlanta Gladiators Zach Yoder 2021-22 game worn gloves.

Zach Yoder is a Woodstock, Georgia native and was a local standout at Woodstock High School where he earned three letters on the ice and two on the lacrosse field. Prior to turning pro, he played four seasons of NCAA Division I hockey: one season at the Air Force Academy and three seasons with Ferris State. He turned pro late in the 2019-20 season with the Toledo Walleye, appearing in four games. In 2020-21, Yoder played in eight games with the Huntsville Havoc in the SPHL. In his third professional season, Yoder played in sixty games with the Gladiators, with 10 assists and finished with a +5 rating. These blue and gold Warrior gloves show excellent game wear on the outer surfaces and palms. Yoder's jersey number 11 is written in the corner of the palms in black Sharpie. Both gloves have been photo matched using the defects on the right thumb and left pinky to a game photo taken late in the season. I acquired these gloves from a team equipment sale.
