Fr. Feller's Corner

You may have heard me say that the emotion of sadness comes about when we miss the ones we love. We can also feel sad when our desire for things to work out a certain way is unfulfilled. We might feel sad when our favorite team does not win the game, we do not receive a good result from a medical exam, or we cannot find a new job. The emotion of anger can be involved too. Anger can move us to overcome the obstacles to what we desire. For example, after losing a game, anger moves me to practice harder so that I win the next football game. When or how do you experience the emotions of sadness and anger?

Some of the toughest sorrows come from missing our beloved friends and family members. The sorrows can grow deeper and more persistent when no amount of anger or action can reunite us with the ones we love. Emotions are neither right nor wrong, they just are. But sometimes, we can feel tied up in knots with no place to go. As we approach the holidays, grief often intensifies as our hearts are filled with fond memories and desires for what-had-once-been. Jesus is with you and feels your sadness and anger. We have hope because God exists and has a plan to rescue our relationships from death.

Our love for our deceased beloved does not end. November begins with All Saints Day and all Souls Day. It is a month of praying for the faithfully departed. We can love those who have passed by prayers of intercessions for any purification of mind, body, or soul they may need. Also, relationships do not end with death because when we are in union with Jesus in the Eucharist, we are in union with all those deceased who are in union with Jesus. God's mercy is bigger than we can imagine, and His mercy leads to resurrection. Lastly, just as God blessed us through these special relationships, God has more blessings to share in other ways.

Each of us is called to be avenues of our Father's blessings. You might just be the new blessing God wants to share with a grieving person. Please say yes. Lastly, I want to invite you to come to Our Lady of the Plains grief support meetings at St. Mary in Lake City. Details are in the bulletin. God loves you.

Prayer for the United States

We pray to God, our Father, and the Giver of Life, to watch over and guide our nation. God is the foundational rock of our nation and source of our fundamental rights. We ask for God's presence to be restored, and we seek His guidance for our nation's leaders, urging them to value human life, uphold the responsibilities of freedom, and make wise decisions that move our country in the right direction. Living in uncertain times, you are a certain God. You are the peace in us. -Amen
