Space case is about a kid named Dash who lives in space. He is bored, as the food sucks, he can't go outside, space is limited, and his neighbors are bullies and a VR addict. But his normally boring life gets spiced up when someone is murdered, Dr. Holtz. Dash is convinced it was a murder, the MBA commander Nina says it was an accident, and covers it up. But Dash continues to search for evidence, and also makes contact with alien life.

Space case is a great book. It was highly entertaining, and I couldn't stop reading it. It was also relatable to a popular game called among us, in which players must do tasks, while imposters try to kill everyone, and the crewmates try to find the imposters through cameras, tactics, and just moving around the base and hoping to find evidence. This made the book even more fun. It also was entertaining to see how the MBA residents complained about food, housing, etc.

I would recommend this book to anyone above 4th grade, maybe 3rd if they are a high level reader. The book is pretty easy and short, I finished it in 2 days. There is nothing graphic, and no details of the murder, and nothing scary.
