The book The Death Cure was a very sad book with a lot of death and violence. It was like most other book series I've read, where it is the final battle. It was between Wicked and the Right Hand. It was probably the best book in the series.

Thomas the main character despises Wicked and joins the Right Hand in the fight for human survival. The Right Hand thinks they can put all of the money from Wicked to use to try and save the rest of human kind from the Flare instead of trying to find a make-believe cure.

One bad thing is that all of Wicked's people are trained soldiers and The Right Hand's people are just random civilians that don't even know how to fight. It seemed really unfair until The Right Hand found out a little secret about Wicked that could turn the battle around.

I thought this whole series was amazing! It had so many twists and turns that you just got captivated by it. This book would probably be for kids age 10 and up because of all the blood and violence. I really liked this series and hope you guys read it.
