This is a novel about a life after a zombie apocalypse in 2014. This apocalypse was caused by a man-made virus intended to cure the common cold and cancer. This virus mutated and started to spread like the common cold, and changed dead humans into zombies that only wanted to eat and infect others. The main characters are Georgia and Shaun Mason, who were born after the world was infected. They are both "bloggers", who send information on the internet. These people replace the news because they are honest, quick, and give information that is not affected by the government.

Georgia is the narrator for most of the book, and she narrates the story of the two siblings' adventures. They were both selected to follow Senator Ryman, who is running for the new president of the United States. On the campaign trail, they have to uncover many conspiracies and even terrorist attempts. There are many unexpected turns and twists in the plot that are very intriguing.

This book contains lots of violence and death. It is not recommended for young readers, but I liked the book very much. I would recommend this book to be borrowed from the library because it is of a genre that some people may not like. People who like action and zombie books will love this book. Along with this book, I would recommend the prequels and sequels which can be found on miragrants.com.
