

DECEMBER 21, 1955 – CARIBOU MAINE

On December 21, 1955, around 11:00 p.m., in Caribou, Maine, Roberta Vesta Jacobs, a young housewife, observed an unusual object low over her farmyard for 6 to 8 minutes when she was turning of her lights to go to bed. There was no stars or moon in the sky.

She stated that the shape of the object was like a cup turned upside down on a saucer. The flat saucer part seemed to be spinning fast, the "cup" part was described as like a half moon. The color was like nothing she had ever seen, and the best comparison she provided was that it was like pure gold. She said the object was about the size of a jet plane.

Between the flat bottom part and the half-moon top, she distinguished something "alive"; she could not see any form or outline, but it was like a person walking in front of a light with hurried movements.

She felt as though "they" had a telescope or something pointed at her, and she felt nauseated.

It seems the object maneuvered: it was first seen as a red-orange glare in the sky, then as golden object when it came to hover over the barn, and it then departed fast.

The US Air Force UFO investigation team "Project Blue Book" recorded the case as having no ordinary explanation.
