

1973: Vilvoorde, Belgium

December 15, late at night

Source: Mr. Webb's book

"1973 The Year of The Humanoids"

Left: supposed site of the incident

Right: sketch of the humanoid seen by the witness

Waking up to go to the bathroom, the 28-year old witness observed from his kitchen window a small figure in the courtyard behind his house. The entity wore a binding artifact, a luminous green coverall and a clear spherical helmet over his head, which was attached to a backpack by means of a tube. He was handling an instrument similar to a mine detector, examining the paved surface of the courtyard. When the witness lighted the scene with his flashlight, the being turned toward the window and held up one hand, showing a V (like victory) with two fingers. The head was dark except for two bright luminous eyes, over which there were eyelids that blinked by lowering over the luminous iris. The entity then turned toward the wall circling the yard and walked up the sides stiff legged, at right angles, clearing the top and disappearing from view on the far side. Several minutes later, a disc with flashing colored lights and a transparent dome on top, rose from the other side of the wall. Inside the dome the witness could see the little being. It rose vertically and slowly, swinging back and forth, and then shot off into the sky at high speed. The witness had another experience four months earlier, with other persons, on the Belgian seaside. Four months later he, his wife, and others saw another object as they drove to Bruxelles.

Reliability evaluation: medium

possible mistake with a member of a helicopter crew; one witness only; no investigation for probable evidence left in the courtyard

