Sketch of the humanoid

Mr Fenner was exploring a remote area of the Amazon jungle called Rio Mamoré when, after getting up early in the morning, he observed a silent disc shaped object passing overhead to then descend behind some trees, out of sight. The witness prepared a backpack, grabbed his machete, and walked towards the direction where the object had descended. He eventually came upon a large disc shaped craft that hovered over some nearby bushes. As he stood watching, he felt somebody touching his arm. When he turned around, two tall blond men, wearing one-piece silvery coverall confronted him. The men had several strange instruments hanging from pockets, on the coveralls. They spoke to the witness in a soft melodic unknown language. While they spoke, one of the men took out a small apparatus from his pocket and seemed to set it up. Suddenly their language became clear and understood by the witness, who spoke German. They told him that they came from the star cluster known as Proxima Centauri. One of them introduced himself as Lya. They visited the earth between 1200 and 1350 aD and they explained him the bad changing of climate.
