

1994: Red Flag Forest, Heilongjiang, China

July 16, unspecified hour

Source: article Meet the Chinese Lumberjack
Who Slept With an Alien, by Michael Meyer

Mr. Meng Zhaoguo, a rural worker from northeast China's Wuchang city, taking a lie detector test in Beijing.

The Meng Zhaoguo Incident refers to a supposed close encounter of the third kind, experienced by a man of the same name, which purportedly took place in Red Flag Forest in Heilongjiang.

In 1994, Meng Zhaoguo reported that he and a relative had followed what he thought was a weather balloon after they saw a white, shining object descend into Red Flag Forest.

After the initial encounter, Meng claimed to be suffering from ongoing harassment from the entities, and reported being taken to their spacecraft and forced to copulate. He claimed that on the subsequent July 17 he was abducted from his house and shown Mars, which the entities claimed was their home-world. His story was examined by the UFO Enthusiasts Club at Wuhan University throughout 1997. They concluded that while the initial contact may have occurred, the subsequent reported events were almost certainly untrue. However, the state-sponsored UFO Research Society concluded that his claims were true.

Reliability evaluation:

false

possible invention or dream; no information of his alleged friend; inconsistent declarations;
details and evidences missing

