

All,

We had an extremely interesting gathering today. I especially found the “what else do you know?” discussion to be fascinating.

Our group discussed creating the stations of the cross for Mary recognizing that some of her stations would have come after the cross. Ann knows of a group who have done a similar thing and will forward to us. We agreed this could be an interesting project to explore and part of our celebration of The Magdalene Feast Day.

There was again much talk about what the Gospel of John contains and how it was the guiding star for many communities that were associated with the Magdalene.

I promised to share two items:

One is a link to an article where the author says there was another reason Jesus wept upon raising Lazarus from the dead.

<https://misfitstheology.com/no-jesus-didnt-cry-for-lazarus-a-counter-argument/>

The other was a link to an interview segment of the original J. Robert Oppenheimer. (In my opinion, the movie was worth seeing.)

<https://youtube.com/shorts/ufnDYW14dkY>

Be watching for more from Ann’s treasure trove of knowledge.

Stay thoughtful during these next two weeks, there is so much left to understand.

Dorothy

From Ann’s treasures of knowledge and studies:

Women’s prophetic leadership changed the face of the Roman Empire <https://www.vaticannews.va/en/church/news/2024-02/sisters-project-story-consecrated-life-early-christian-church.html>

Woman and authority as depicted on 4th century Christian sarcophagi <https://www.vaticannews.va/en/church/news/2024-02/sisters-project-story-consecrated-life-early-church-sarcophagi.html>

Fourth century “Mothers of the Church” <https://www.vaticannews.va/en/church/news/2024-02/sisters-project-64-religious-life-early-church-third-article.html>

Epilogue: Made in God’s image and called to proclaim Christ <https://www.vaticannews.va/en/church/news/2024-03/epilogue-made-in-god-s-image-and-called-to-proclaim-christ.html>

March 17, 2024