Course Description

This course will integrate the key disciplines of English- literature, composition, and grammar.

We have three wonderful books to read this year!

They will provide food for thought, discussion, and writing, in addition to exposing us to different styles and techniques.

We will focus on the writing process by doing different types of compositions, and give attention to strong sentences and paragraph construction. Written responses to our reading will be varied and often fun.

Our attention to grammar will help us become better writers as we grow more familiar with the parts of speech as well as some of the rules of grammar.

A typical class will look like...

Class time will include grammar instruction and review, discussions about the current reading and/or writing project, writing instruction, as well as opportunities to share our writing.

Class participation does a lot to enhance learning and is very encouraged!
