What's a Seed Library?

A Seed Library is a community-driven resource—similar to a traditional library—where gardeners can borrow, donate, or exchange seeds. It's a wonderful way to support biodiversity, local gardening, and sustainable growing by sharing seeds adapted to our region

Why You'll Love It

- Free & accessible: Take up to a few seed packets—no catch.
- Grow & return: Plant, harvest, and if you can, save and donate seeds back to support the next growing cycle
- Community & biodiversity: By sharing seeds—especially heirloom or open-pollinated varieties—we enrich our gardens and preserve plant diversity
