

THE ROLE OF A KING

By: Fountain Hendricks

Revelation 1:6 says, "and hath made us kings and priests unto God and his Father; to him be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen."

The role of a king is to create the environment, conditions and circumstances for its people to prosper. Wherever you have Dominion, you are suppose to dominate that environment.

Kings are not slaves, servants or peasants. They do not follow trends, they are the trend. They do not comply with standards. They ARE the standard. They do not follow rules. They're the law.

As a king of your territory you are the MAJOR influence. Unfortunately, the Christian community does not teach this. They encourage people to be servants and subservient which creates an attitude of dependency.

A dependency attitude causes people to sit back, take less and settle for less. If God made us kings why is the church community following the trends of the world rather than creating the Kingdom standard?

The answer is simple. They do not know they are kings.

YOU CAN'T BECOME, WHAT YOU DO NOT KNOW!

The term "king" stated in Revelation 1:6 is NOT gender specific. It is not talking about men and excluding women.

God includes both genders. While examining the role of a king, have you ever heard of a king taking less than the best? Have you ever seen a king take less than what's royal? No. Kings value two things in the highest esteem.

They value their WEALTH and their REPUTATION. A king is glorified in what they can do for others. They are honored for their strength, beauty and wisdom. As kings on the earth we have three roles.

1. To build a RIGHTEOUS REPUTATION.
2. To maintain their BEAUTY.
3. To increase in STRENGTH and POWER.

RIGHTEOUS REPUTATION

A righteous reputation is what people hear about you BEFORE they see you. A king is honored BEFORE he is seen. His reputation travels to places his feet hasn't felt. When a king has a righteous reputation their words changes situations. Their presence changes the culture.

Their wisdom changes lives. A righteous reputation is the primary influence a king has over His people. A righteous reputation is a corner stone of how fair the king is. It speaks volumes to His character and integrity. The power of a king with His people comes from his reputation.

BEAUTY

A king must show his beauty. His beauty is not just in his appearance but it is in his SURROUNDINGS and ENVIRONMENTS. The beauty of a king and his kingdom sets the standard for the culture he wants his people to follow.

The beauty of a king is in what he wears, how he lives, what he drives and how his environment smells. Why do you think the kings who lived centuries ago ate on golden plates, wore fine linens and rode in the best chariots? There was a reason for that. The beauty of a king ENHANCES his glory.

It increases the respect that others have for him while influencing others to follow his lead. Good aroma smells invites peace and tranquility. This is part of the king's beauty. His beauty attracts compliments, praise and celebration which is befitting for a king.

STRENGTH AND POWER

A king's strength and power is in his WISDOM. A king seeks wisdom like a dog seeks food. They want more of it. The hunger NEVER stops. Kings understand that the strength and longevity of their kingdom is DEPENDENT on how much wisdom they have.

KINGS MAKE DECISIONS. This is their daily assignment. The objectives of kings are to change the culture, control the environment and establish protocols that help and protect the people. As kings, these are your roles.

Whatever domain you are over you should be doing this. Your domain can be your business, home, family, work department, town, city, state, county, etc. If you think like a king you will soon behave like one.
