Adventure Travel

Adventure tourism is one of the fastest growing trends in the travel business.

Classifying an adventure travel means.

Adventure travel depends on your level of strenuousness activities

- leisure biking
- hiking
- base jumping into an underground cave
- includes going to far-away areas,
- intermingling with various cultures,
- doing a physical activity.

Two categories of adventure travel are hard and soft adventures.

Hard adventures fall under extreme and mostly dangerous sporting activity. rock climbing, surfing, paragliding, and scuba diving in remote locations.

Soft adventures, are leisure activities that are often educational. It does not involve strenuous activity unlike hard adventures. Bird watching, religious pilgrimages and architectural tours fall under soft adventures.

Who embarks on an adventure travel? Travel Industry Association of America's (TIA) study indicated an estimated 20 percent of adult travelers are adventure tourists. It is also parallel to The Wall Street Journal reporting revenues from adventure tourism has skyrocketed topping the adventure market with $245 million dollars.

While many studies say college-educated males in their 20s typically embark on hard adventures, it is harder to categorize people who go for soft adventures. They say baby boomers and seniors significantly affect the rise of number of soft travelers. Adventure-seeking women have also substantially caused the continuous growing of the industry.

In addition, adventure travels are physically and psychologically beneficial both men and women. Physical challenges like mountain climbing require both physical fitness and focus. It develops muscles as well as serves as an excellent mental workout. Achieving difficult tasks also help build self-esteem especially for people in midlife crisis.

There are several options as to what kind of adventure travel fits a specific type of person. But you need to determine how adventurous you like to be. A travel agency can help guide you through the multitude choices that you will face.

Sports-themed vacations are well-liked for athletes.

- baseball fantasy camps
- NASCAR driving schools.

- Safari is a soft adventure popular to many ages. This may involve driving and walking through the African plains and come into close contact with lion, leopard, elephant, rhino and buffalo.

Longtime popular destinations are the Seven Wonders of World that include biking and hiking to these locales. Some of the world wonders include

1. pyramids of Egypt,
2. expedition to Antarctica,
3. cultural tour in Japan and Ethiopia,
4. the Great Wall of China,
5. Taj Mahal in India,
6. Niagara Falls Canada
7. Grand Canyon USA

If you have an adventure travel be sure to stay safe . Take note that adventure travel has inherent danger involved.

Traveling Cheap and Seeing The World

Traveling, in any language, always connotes money and expenses. Even eliminating first-class travel and first-class amenities, going out of your home to go to another place means money, board and lodging, and other countless expenses you did not plan for.

The other side of the equation, some people travel for months (or, even years) without showing any signs of wear and tear. Nor were there any police squads barging into their houses in the middle of the night and hauling them away for some crimes involving money.

These people are not necessarily rich. They just know how to make their travel money last longer, and afford to travel to more places at more times.

There are many ways to see the world at a bargain price,

Knowing where to go

Knowing where to go is different from knowing where you want to go. All the places in the world have their charms that you haven't seen on TV or in magazines. Here are some ways on how to stretch your travel budget .

Many countries in Asia, parts of Africa and South America are cheaper to go to than North America, Europe or Australia. Your travel money for one week in Europe can last a month in India, Nepal and many Southeast Asian countries.

Flying months

Initial air fares make the biggest cuts into your travel budget. Knowing the holiday seasons around the world and being flexible with your own travel dates and times is a perfect combination to save big.

Take note that half of the world's population wants to fly in December for the Christmas holidays. In Europe, the most expensive months to fly around are in July and August which are the European summer holiday months.

Transport costs

Costs of air fares for the same destination can be drastically different according to the actual time you fly. Flying mid-week instead of around the weekend or at “unholy hours” like very early in the morning can reduce air fares.

Booking your flight online and well in advance is much cheaper. Round trip (back and forth) tickets are also cheaper than standard fares.

Travel light, trains and buses are good buys for cheap city fares. (Sometimes, they can even be cheaper at night in some places.)

Accommodations

Youth hostels can be an affordable option around the world. (These are at places that don't have a backpacker scene or cheap traveller's guesthouses.)

Sometimes, discounts can be negotiated in many guest houses (sometimes called “pension houses” in other places) and hotels if you are staying longer. It is cheaper than moving to new places every few days or so.

Options

There are other options in reducing the costs of travel. Keeping your eyes open to new possibilities can go a long way in helping costs down and make your stay enjoyable and cheap.
