Inspired Action

Welcome to my newsletter dedicated to bringing you the information, inspiration, wisdom, and knowledge you need to live your best life and achieve success with Young Living. My newsletters incorporate fresh articles from myself and other experts on the Law of Attraction, spirituality, wellness, wealth, relationships, web design, and success. My mission is to support you in building a life of passion, purpose, abundance, love and joy.

Today I would like to tell you about one of the real secrets to making life work in a big way; it's by taking what I call Inspired Action. Do you sometimes follow that small voice inside choosing to guide you out of struggle and into prosperity -- you know the one that nudges you gently in the direction of your desires.

Inspired Action is essential to your success in life with whatever you are doing! I believe we all have this brilliant compass within us that when we learn how to trust it and follow its quiet guidance, it will take us to greatness beyond what we have dreamed. In a constantly changing world we are making choices daily that affect our journey which encompasses our natural sense of instinct and common sense (YL oil for those who need a little guidance with this one). This can assist in creating inspired action and momentum.

My Young Living career came from Inspired Action! I did what felt right moment to moment by following my heart and instinct! Many times throughout the years I didn't understand the business component of this industry.....like the compensation plan, corporate politics, taxes, etc.....I always focused on people and my relationship with them.

The places that I personally found most uncomfortable is where my greatest lessons and teachings have come from. What I did not understand I went looking for.....in teachers, coaches and role models. I went up-line, down-line, and side-line throughout all of Young Living. I am going to share a secret with you here; I found all my answers when I went to all the Young Living events that I could. I found that through the Law of Attraction my questions created my answers. Here's what you can do to instantly activate your intuition... "Look for Proof!"

One of the most powerful ways to get into alignment with your intuition is to look to your past for proof of when following your instincts has worked for you.

The second you see how inspired action has worked for you before, your belief sets expand and you instantly align with your intuition.

So, how do you look for proof? Ask yourself these questions:

1. When in your life have you had a strong instinct to do something that may have seemed off topic, disconnected or out of left field but you did it anyway - and when you did, it brought you success in a way that you never would have imagined?
2. When in your life have you ever been faced with a situation, relationship or opportunity that seemed like exactly what you had been looking for, BUT in the pit of your stomach you knew it wasn't? And, even though, you had absolutely no rational justification to feel this way, and other people thought you were crazy, you decided to walk away and it turned out to be the best decision you could have made?

The Difference Between Forced Action and Inspired Action:

The struggle between forced and inspired action most often shows up when we want something in our lives to be different. Most people look at the things they are dissatisfied with and do one of two things:

1. Ignore it
2. Try to FORCE it to change by taking action (EVEN WORSE Idea)

Forced action is any time you are trying to force something to change or 'think' your way out of something. Forced action tends to stem from fear, doubt and worry.

Inspired Action is when you feel a strong instinct to do something. Inspired action stems from openness and trust.

Here are the tricky things about Inspired Action...

Inspired Action doesn't always seem completely practical. Inspired Action will often make you push your comfort zone. Imagine taking one step (just one) of Inspired Action every single day...

How different will your life be a year from now?

What about a month from now?

Or even by the end of the day?

Are you getting excited yet? Great! Here's a trick to help you...

Every day, look at your current primary goal (target) and ask yourself this one question:

'What one step can I take today, that pushes my comfort zone, I KNOW will take me one step closer to _____ (fill in your goal here)?'

Now here's the key to this trick... You HAVE TO TAKE THE INSPIRED ACTION!

The cool part is that most of the time the step of Inspired Action will take less than an hour and will move you forward more than 10 hours of JUST ANY ACTION.

Seriously, one inspired action phone call will normally change your life faster than 10 hours of organizing your office.

If you can actually change your life in one step of Inspired Action a day and in one hour or less a day then when is the best time to take the first step? The answer is NOW!

Make Sure It's Inspired Action.

I know what it's like to wonder if the action you are going to take is inspired or forced - sometimes it is hard to tell the difference - let me help.

As I said before, forced action can keep you busy and running in circles every day for the rest of your life while inspired action doesn't eat up all of your time and definitively moves you toward your goals.

Knowing the difference between regular action and inspired action will eventually become a 'Gut Instinct' for you...and once you tap into your intuition, the Law of Attraction will work for you in ways you never imagined.

BUT...chances are good that right now you are like most people and most of the action you take is probably inspired by fear. So to help you get in touch with the difference between Forced Action and Inspired Action, I have a tool for you...

There is one question you can ask yourself to discover if your instinct is guiding you out of Fear or Inspiration.

Before you take any action, ask yourself this question:

"Will doing this move me toward my goal of _____, away from my goal of _____ or will it keep me running in place?"

IT'S IMPORTANT to name the goal SPECIFICALLY, if you are general and don't get specific this won't be as effective.

If your honest answer is that it will move you toward your goal, GREAT, GO FOR IT...you are about to tap into the Law of Attraction, the key of Inspired Action.

BUT...if it will move you away from your goal OR keep you running in place then ask yourself this question:

"What small action can I take RIGHT NOW to move me toward my goal of _____."

When an answer pops into your head, ask yourself the first question again just to make sure you aren't fooling yourself. Then... GO TAKE INSPIRED ACTION!

Remember, the key to the Law of Attraction is Inspired Action. And once you tap into the power of Inspired Action you will stop taking action out of fear and in doing so will start immediately attracting the life you desire.

YL Website New, Awesome, & Exciting Website Features!

GO TO YLWebsite.com

YL Website is truly the most innovative website for Young Living distributors around the world to market their businesses and share their stories! Not only are they stirring up the online world with incredible websites but countless companies are trying endlessly to copy and emulate their success.

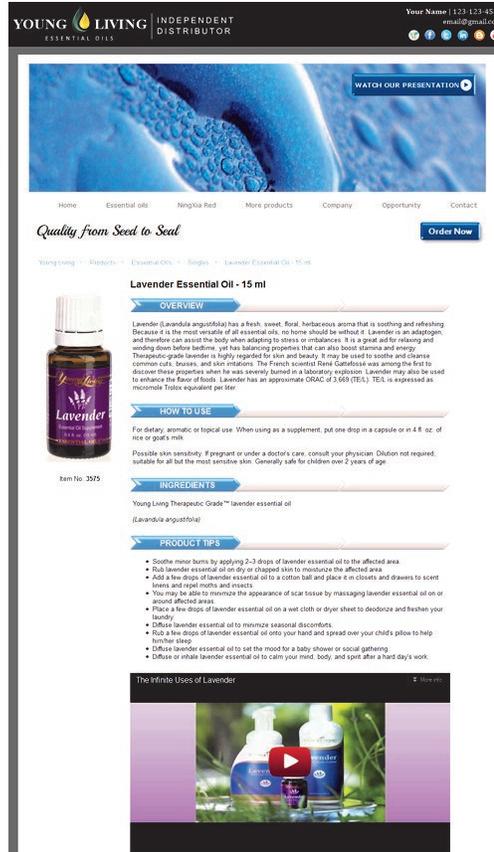

Dallas Harting is the founder and the one behind the scenes working tirelessly to make YL Website better and better. This is the first time in Young Living's history that distributors have asked for an online business tool and it has been brought to them in such a quick and efficient manner that their heads spun.

From the beginning YL Website has been all about absolute beautiful design and efficient websites – meaning getting new people to do what is most important, sign up in your Young Living business! YL Website makes this so incredibly simple. There is no searching around or wandering where to click to order product and sign up. Every page of the YL Websites have a clear and attractive “Order Now” button that once clicked clearly educates new people how to order from Young Living. Then they are simply sent to the sign up page with the website owner's Young Living member number already pre-installed so there is no confusion for the new person. Dallas Harting says “it's the little things that count and YL Website does all the right little things for people so they do not have to think, it just works.”

So what's new with the website?

Well simply put, a lot is new! YL Website is constantly tweaking pages and launching new features that make the websites stand out. One of the newest and coolest features are the new “Transitional header images” - with this new feature, website users can now choose to have many images for their website header instead of just one. And users can choose how the images transition to one another. Think of it like a slideshow. “We have made it so that users can choose what images they would like to appear (literally as many as they want), what transitional effect the images will have between each other, how long the images will display for, and even how fast the transitions occur” - Dallas Harting. Basically users have all these awesome controls to make their site look exactly how they want. There is even a way for users to add their own header images themselves - so their sites can truly look unique and personal to them. This is unheard of in the industry of replicated websites for distributors.

No one or company has made their sites this personal and customizable and why would they? Dallas Harting is a distributor just like you reading this newsletter. He knows what a distributor needs and the thinking process behind building a successful Young Living business. Dallas first said when he built the website “basically I built a website that I always wanted for my own Young Living business, then I realized after so many people were asking me to do the same for them, that I just had to make it available to everyone.”

Having a YL Website simply makes your business so much easier and most importantly duplicatable.

YL Website has also added in-depth and detailed descriptions for all the Young Living essential oils and soon to be all products that Young Living carries. This is a powerful and exciting feature. And most importantly, YL Website created these new pages so that website users can send people directly to them. Why is this important? Well lets say you meet someone who has pain in their body and you suggest they try “Deep Relief Roll-on” or “PanAway Blend” - you can simply email or txt them your specific website page about that product. And from that page, the visitor can click “order now” to buy it with you always getting the credit. So why is this worth mentioning? Well the vast majority of other Young Living personal sites are not capable of this because their product description pages are written in JavaScript code on these pages - and thus you cannot go to an exact product page. Again these are the little things that Dallas has thought through because these are the things that make it easier to share your Young Living business to new people.

Dallas is always tweaking little things here and there that make life easier for a distributor. Like the ability to send new people directly to your sign up page that educates them on an independent distributor and a customer then takes them through the process of ordering. Here is an example of a page:

www.ylwebsite.com/example/order

A website user can send new prospects directly to their own order page. Notice how even the URL is easy to remember and type - this has all been thought through, tested, and analyzed to simply make things easy.

Young Living Academy Celebrates Success!

You measure success with time. It has been almost a year since the D. Gary Young Foundation launched their Sponsor-a-Child program for the students of Young Living Academy (YLA) in Ecuador. With 120 of 158 children now sponsored, the DGYF is celebrating and saying, "Thank you!" Thirty-eight children still need a sponsor.

Want to help?

Go to: www.dgaryyoungfoundation.org
- next click on the "Donate Now" button

Now that the children attending YLA are in an environment that enhances learning and are aspiring to reach their full potential, we need to expand our school! For our ninth graders to continue on to high school, we need to build another classroom. We are simply out of space! Costs are currently being gathered and a campaign designed to meet the needs of the school. The DGYF needs your help to make this happen! One idea we are exploring to raise funds is a new approach where everyone will have the opportunity to make a difference. Stay tuned to our website, Facebook Status updates and Tweets (DGYFoundation) where we will let you know how to help make a difference in the world.

YLA students recently competed in the Minigenios De El Universo (Genius University), a countrywide competition of 200 schools in Ecuador. It is organized by the country's largest newspaper, Diario El Universo. Our students are currently in the third phase of the tournament and rank in the top 45 schools participating - a wonderful showing of our kids and the staff!

Our Young Living Academy baseball teams have had their own opportunities to shine at the Campeonato Liga Ricardo Chacon where our Child AA team placed second and our Junior A were Champions! The teams are currently preparing for another competition later this month. The Child AA team is invited to Peru in January.

Want to see the latest photos of the children at YLA? We have created a page on Shutterfly.

Visit: www.younglivingacademyecuador.shutterfly.com

On this website the staff of Young Living Academy can upload pictures of events, competitions, classes, outings, share videos and more. This free site is especially wonderful for all of our child sponsors and regular supporters who can see their kids. Everyone is welcome to become a member of the site (also free). Check it out today!

Holiday Fun and Safety for the Furry Family Members

The holidays for our pets should be full of family fun and joy. Often we can inadvertently share too much or neglect to factor in their safety. During the holidays as a family we have more activities and opportunity for our pets to come into misadventures. We want to and should include our four footed family members in our celebrations. Here are some tips to including them and minimizing some of the misadventures.

Our pets enjoy being part of our family so try to include them as often as possible. Keeping their routine as normal as possible and planning the holiday fun with them in mind will minimize the risk of accidents. Our pets do not have a calendar so they will not realize the big dinner party is coming up and plan to stay upstairs quietly. Plan their needs into each of your own family plans, even if that is a safe anxiety free place to go.

Take care with:

Christmas Tree – Make sure it is anchored securely. Your pets may try to climb it or run under it not knowing it could tip. If it is a cut tree remember the water can become stagnate and breed harmful bacteria if not changed daily. Some of the fire retardants that are sprayed onto the trees or even the materials the trees are made out of can be poisonous to our pets. With younger pets that have not learned their manners yet please opt to take the time to teach them caution around the new decorations. Use Evergreen essence or Christmas Spirit for the spells of the season instead of candles that can be a fire hazard.

Sparkling - light catching enticing toys can be more than the curious playful pet can handle. If it looks like they could bite a piece off and swallow it then they can. The temptation to nibble on dangly type decorations is too strong to train that out of them. Just hang that type out of the way or opt out of using them all together. Remember ingestion of decorations could lead to serious digestive issues, surgery or even death.

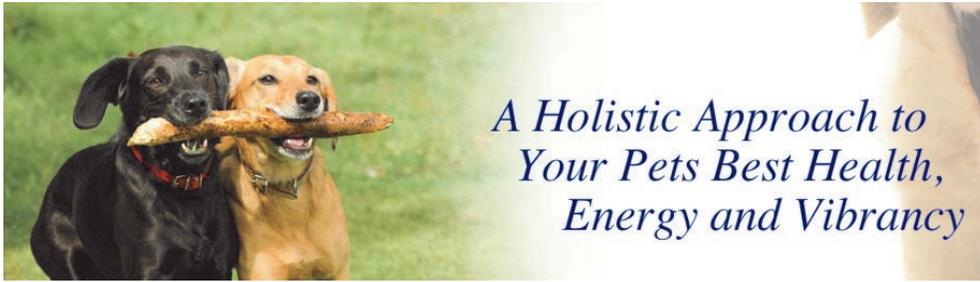

Tempting Toys - remember holiday pet toys are designed to appeal to our desires and not the safety of our pets. MOST toys are unsafe for pets. If they can tear it apart do not buy it. If they can swallow it do not buy it. If they can chew it down to create either breaking or swallowing do not buy it. Do not be tempted by the marketing of the cute toy in lew of checking its safety first.

Over indulgence – The holidays are riddled with opportunities to over eat both for ourselves and our pets. Lets take care when putting out holiday fare. Lets remember they do not need to eat with us at the table. Remember they may develop digestive issues if fed new foods. These can even include life-threatening pancreatitis. Overindulgence for pets are the number one emergency calls for veterinarians during the holidays. Be vigilant with opportunities to keep your pet away from danger. Use Di-Gize on the belly 1:5 dilution for those overeating accidents.

Holiday Poisons – chocolate can kill dogs. Even a little in a little dog can lead to heart abnormal rhythms and death. Keep the candy dishes out of reach. The sweetener xylitol

A Holistic Approach to Your Pets Best Health, Energy and Vibrancy

Include their paw print on the cards you send or under the tree. Have your pet on the gift list to both give and receive. Remember them in your prayers.

is also unsafe so do not feed it to your pets. Be careful when baking about what drops on the floor or hot burners for cats to walk on, or tipping pots of holiday cheer. Mistletoe, holly, poinsettias and lilies are often poisonous to pets. Get pet friendly arrangements or keep them safely out of reach. Overuse of essential oils both in diffusing and in topical application can also be poisons. Less is better with pets. Learn the safe and effective ways to use the oils.

Wired up – With children as part of our family unit we will take precautions with exposed wires. Remember our pets may find a cord an opportunity to chew and entangle in as they run and play. Take the extra time while decorating to consider the bite hazard. Other decorating considerations are bulbs breaking or being chewed, burning candles and chewing on batteries. All of these could cause injury, such as cuts or burns to the mouth or even a choke hazard. Food is often fun to decorate with especially when making your own decorations, just remember the tempting smell may lure your pets to go hunting for the decorations and eat them.

Entertaining – Know your pet. They may not want to entertain or feel their home is being invaded. Give them a safe quiet place to go. Board them the night of the party to minimize stress. Have a neighbor take them to their house whilst you have the block party at yours. Keep the routine normal with food and walks even the night of the party. Keep alcohol away from pets. Even a small drink for a cat could cause irreversible kidney damage. Using lavender and peace and calming oils can help the anxiety of the hustle and bustle of the season.

Noise – loud popping noises, unusual noisy decorations, and even chorales can scare your pets. Consider boarding or giving them a dark safe haven to go to.

The door – The front door may open more than any other time of the year. The windows are opening up here in Las Vegas so be aware of extra escape routes for your pets. Make sure you are vigilant at the door and teach your pet to come on command. There is more traffic and the risk of injury is great.

Strings and Things - confetti can be a choke hazard and cause obstruction in cats. Limit where it is used in the house so you can safely remove it all before you let your pet back into that area.

DO INCLUDE:

Take your pet for a drive to see the lights.
Dress them up for the family photo (safely)

Give to pet charities in their name or in the name of those pets that have passed.

Look into their eyes and remember what the holidays are really about – unconditional love and celebration of life.

Be grateful for the opportunity to consider precautions for your pet as a valued member of your family.

There are many pet fundraisers during the holidays, consider taking your pet for a Santa picture to support pet awareness.

If you choose to adopt a pet during the holidays PLEASE rescue.

1000's of pets, loving souls, are put to sleep every day. The adopted pet is a special pet because of its story of rescue.

Come to our clinic and place an angle on our tree for any pet that has passed this year as a memorial for all they do for us.

Get a special ornament to remember each of your pets with through the years.

Enjoy the company this season. Remember the reason for the season. Let your pet pull you into the present awareness of just being and enjoying the holidays. Let this season be the one where you enjoy each moment instead of flying by in a blur. The best Christmas ever is the one spent as a family.
