

Name _____ Date _____

My Parents are Proud of Me

My parents were very proud of me. Last Friday I had a very difficult history test. There were lots of months, years and dates and facts I had to remember for the test. I went to the library three times a week to study. It was easier to study at the library because there are no TVs and it is really quiet. I really wanted to pass the test to make my parents proud of me. I studied really hard. I would bring my textbooks to the library after school to study. When I got home, I would read four pages before dinner. I would also read four more pages before I went to bed. I studied really hard for the history test. When I went to school to take the test, I was confident that I would pass. The teacher handed the tests back Monday morning and I passed the test. I showed my parents and they were so proud of me. My mother made one of my favorite dinners. She made me a well done steak, rice, broccoli and rolls. My father bought me a new bicycle. They were so proud of my test score that they put my test on the refrigerator.

Answer the questions below.

1. When was the history test?

2. Why did I like studying at the library?

3. How many pages did I read before dinner?

4. What did I have for dinner?

5. What did my dad buy me?
